The Very Latest Styles

It's an old, old saying that the people you write to often judge you by your stationery. And there is a great deal of truth in the fact that stationery can be so chosen as to reflect the best of judgment and taste.

Stationery suitable for one occasion may be entirely out of place for another. Then, too, the styles in stationery change the same as styles in clothing.

To be sure that your stationery is right for all purposes, always buy it here.

MANY SPEAKERS ARE ON THE PROGRAM.

(By Associated Press.)

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 10.—Nearly 200 speakers of national reputation have been placed on the program of the annual safety congress of the National Safety Council, which will be held here Sept. 15 to 21. W. H. Cameron of Chicago, is general manager of the National Safety Council. There will be a safety section especially for women. Two of the speakers in this section will be Miss Ida M. Tarbell and Miss Nesta Edwards. A part of the general program will be a working demonstration of municipal safety in one of the busy streets.

P. J. Brand, assistant chief safety engineer, United States Ship Building Board of Emergency Fleet Corporation, Philadelphia, has arranged for a section at the congress and fifty or sixty engineers of the Emergency Fleet will attend.

"Investigation shows," said Mr. Brand, "that in peace there were 3,000 long-time injuries in one year. This shows the vital importance of introducing safety devices and the safety doctrine in the United States Ship Building Yards. We are now employing ten times the number of men that we do in normal times and if the same ratio held good, it would mean 30,000 men from this vital and important industry which would very materially delay in the winning of the war."

CAN'T WITHSTAND AMERICANS, HE SAID.

Washington, Aug. 9.—In a communique received late tonight Gen. Pershing reports the situation along the Vesle as unchanged.

The communique quotes from a letter found on the battle field written by a German lieutenant, who was later killed, to his father. The writer's experience in the Chateau Thierry sector said: "The Americans are attacking on the entire line. Never have I seen such a thing. Nobody could have withstood them."

The letter further described the enemy fire as terrible. In closing the letter he said: "Summing it all up I think we have under-estimated Foch and his reserves, and especially the Americans. I have a presentiment I shall lose my skin also. I wish it were tomorrow."

WAVED SIGNAL TO FRENCH

By Fast Running Sergeant Baughman, Reaches Comrades in Safety—Is Rewarded With Military Medal by the French.

Washington, Flight Sergeant James H. Baughman of Washington, who was transferred from the Lafayette escadrille to the Paris Air Defense squadron, has been reported a prisoner in unofficial address to his mother, Mrs. Mary A. Baughman, president of the Dixie Agricultural company of Washington. Sergeant Baughman joined the Lafayette escadrille in 1917 when he was eighteen years old and won the Military medal, the highest French honor to noncommissioned men.

The incident that earned the sergeant the medal was described in a letter he wrote recently. Paying tribute to the wonderful spirit of his French comrades, Sergeant Baughman said:

"We had been sent out to patrol back of the German lines and to attack anything enemy we saw. Having incendiary bombs in my gun, I was prepared to attack a German 'sunshine' or observatory balloon. Just as I was beginning the descent to attack, I saw a Boche airplane going in the direction of our lines to do photographic work. I put on full speed and signaled to the other planes to follow. They evidently did not see my signal, for they didn't go down with me. When I got 700 meters from the Boche I started firing. The enemy replied by turning loose both guns at me. I must have got him, however, with the first blast, for when I pulled up to make another dive he was silent."

"Then something happened that would make the greatest man on earth cry, and as I am not one of the best, you can imagine that I left little unaid. My motor stopped absolutely dead. There was only one thing for me to do and that was to dive, lose the Boche and try to volplane to the French lines. As I went past the German machine it immediately came down and, putting some nice steel very close to him, I did all the acrobatics I had ever learned. When I had finished I found that I had come down from 10,000 to 1,000 feet and there was no Boche in sight."

Alone in No Man's Land.

"I then looked around for a place to land. I saw a fairly good place off to the right and made it. I then stepped out of the machine—right on the face of a dead German. It took me a minute to realize what was happening and I awoke to the sound of bullets whizzing past my head. That didn't disturb me much, because I was wondering why somebody hadn't buried the German. Looking around, however, all I could see was dead Germans. It suddenly dawned on me that I was in No Man's Land. Of all the places there are to land in France and Germany I had to land between the two."

"Then I realized what a predicament I was in and began to think up some way to get out of it. The thought came to me that if I was nearer the German lines than to the French, I had better get rid of those incendiary bombs in my pocket, for if the Germans catch you with them you are shot at once. I climbed back into my machine to the tune of bullets and took out a load of over 200 cartridges, threw them on the ground and then removed my compass and altimeter."

"The first thing I struck was a grave, unhit, with two of the enemy in it. I eased myself down into it, lifted up one of the Germans and put the cartridges beneath him. I started walking back to my machine. As I got near it the Boche lines started their machine guns and rifles at me, and the French, unaware that I was one of them, also opened up. I had to walk 300 feet between the lines and it was no joke with all that fire concentrated in my direction. One bullet passed so close to my face that I really felt the wind. I decided that I'd have to go to one of the lines, enemy or friend, but just then I heard a machine overhead. I looked up and saw white puffs breaking out all around it."

Signaled With Handkerchief.

"On the way the air got so hot I had to fall face down, and I didn't move for, I guess, five minutes. There being no good reason for my being shot like a dog, I yanked out my handkerchief and waved it at the French lines."

"They finally got it, after ten minutes of waiting, and I saw a French officer beckoning me from a bit of woods. If there ever has been a faster 50-yard sprint I never heard of it. I ran so fast that I ran right into the officer, and very nearly knocked his revolver out of his hand. I showed him my identification card and then started cursing him for shooting at me. He had been taking potshots at me out there. He apologized, saying that he could only see my head, because his position was slightly lower than No Man's Land."

"They took me up to the divisional general, and I reported that I had seen more than 300 dead Germans and only two Frenchmen. It made him so happy that he gave me a dinner, and complimented me for being a good soldier."

WAS ORDER TO GERMAN SOLDIERS.

(By Associated Press.)
To The American Army in the West, Thursday, Aug. 8.—Information that the German soldiers had been ordered to destroy all property possible, particularly churches and houses of good appearance, during the retreat from the Marne, is in possession of the French and Americans. It came from several sources, a detailed account being furnished by a deserter from the Fourth Prussian guard division.

The deserter said the soldiers had been ordered by Gen. Finck von Finckenstein to destroy everything within their power. Similar orders also were issued by lieutenants to bombers.
